About The Oakland County Pioneer and Historical Society: Established in 1874, the Oakland County Pioneer and Historical Society is the oldest continuously operating non-profit historical society in Michigan. The role of our society is to preserve and convey the contribution of Oakland County in the evolution of American History. We trace our past and educate the community of its heritage by maintaining and featuring Pine Grove, which includes the homestead of Michigan's 12th governor, an 1860s one room school house, and the carriage house library and museum. We maintain a collection of significant and unique Oakland County historical artifacts and records for public availability. We believe preservation of the past leads to enrichment of the future.
